SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Luke 14: 25-33. A Moral Imperative For Our Time

'So therefore, none of you can become my disciple if you do not give up all your possessions' (Luke 14:33).

This week Malcolm Turnbull has said that budget repair is the 'massive moral challenge' for our time – words strangely reminiscent of Kevin Rudd's claim in 2008 that tackling climate change was the great moral challenge of our time. However we identify the moral challenge, there is always a cost to meeting it, and the question remains as to who should bear the cost. I liked the cartoon in The Canberra Times (August 30, 2016) depicting someone in a Centrelink queue saying, 'I'd like to swap my Newstart allowance for a generous government bail out'.

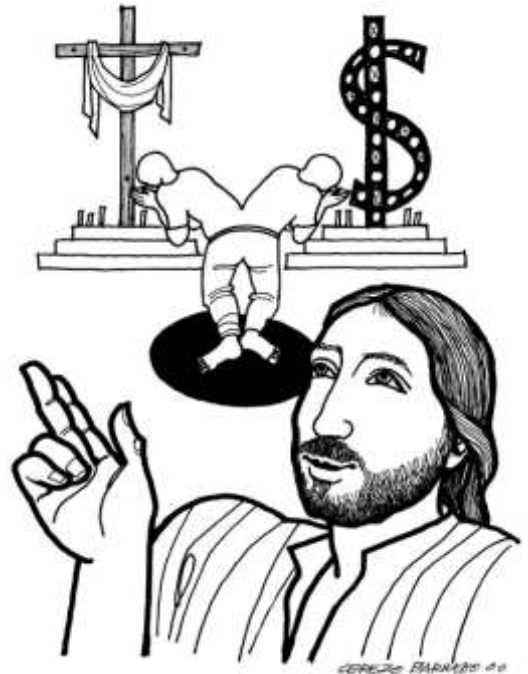

Today's gospel reading takes us beyond specific moral issues to the more pervasive and more radical way of being in the world expected of those who claim to follow Jesus. Many years ago I remember reading that the admission fee to the kingdom of God is nothing but the annual subscription is everything you have.

An economic metaphor is used in the teaching on the cost of discipleship that follows the parable of the banquet – that wonderful symbol of grace, generosity and inclusiveness. In that parable Jesus seems to warn against postponing attending the banquet. But now he is warning the growing numbers of would-be followers not to follow too hastily without first counting the cost. Certainly following him is no soft option, demanding no less than complete surrender, and this is reflected in the confronting teaching on family relationships and personal property.

There is something attractive about such absolute self-surrender. Some of you may remember that scene in Zefferelli's film Brother Sun, Sister Moon where the future St Francis of Assisi casts aside his garments to embrace a life of poverty and service. But most of us are called to live this out in the midst of ordinary life.

Although couched in absolute terms – an exaggeration to make a point – we could say that today's reading is about non-attachment and self-surrender in the service of love. What if the invitation here is to cultivate practices of generosity of spirit and possessions; gratitude and humility, rather than a sense of entitlement or addiction to material goods and status; empathy that goes beyond political correctness; interdependence rather than insisting on our own way; welcoming the stranger rather than fencing off our families, communities and nation. Where our attempts are genuine, we will soon find ourselves carrying our own cross as we come to the end of our resources. And that's where grace happens.

Social Justice – At the Heart of Politics?

This week I attended two events of a political nature and was both heartened and surprised by what I found.

The first was an ACT Election Party Leaders Forum organised by ACT Council of Social Services. Messrs. Barr, Hanson and Rattenbury were invited to respond to a document prepared by ACTCOSS and others titled Community Shared Statement for ACT 2016 Election, which states amongst many other things that “We see a growing gap between those who enjoy Canberra’s prosperity and liveability and those who don’t. This growing gap compromises individual and family economic and social wellbeing, compromises environmental values and threatens our collective success. For Canberra’s political leaders on all sides, the major task in the next term of government is to resist and reverse trends for growing inequality and division in our local economy and community.”

I invite you to read the document that can be found on the ACTCOSS website to inform your decision making in the coming election.

ACTCOSS and ACT Shelter have also been conducting a housing advocacy campaign called My Vote for Housing. If you are concerned about affordable housing in the ACT, like I am, then I invite you to look at the website at www.myvoteforhousing.com.au.

I also received an invitation to attend the Ecumenical Service to mark the opening of the 45th session of Parliament, held at the Presbyterian Church of St Andrew in Forrest at 7.30am on Tuesday this last week. Notable attendees included the Peter Cosgrove, Malcolm Turnbull, Bill Shorten, Barnaby Joyce, many new and old politicians and our own Bishop Stuart Robinson, who gave the address.

What pleasantly surprised me about both events was a strong focus on social justice. At the Forum, our Party Leaders were across the issues and spoke with great commitment. In Church the readings included the beatitudes and we sang “Make me a Channel of your Peace”. Maybe it was just me, but I found great comfort and optimism at both events. I often find a focus on social justice lacking in our political arena and although I am somewhat skeptical that it will be applied to any great degree in practice, I do take some comfort in politicians at least using and committing to the rhetoric.

Wish list: lentils, packets of soup, pull up nappies.

FROM PARISH COUNCIL MEETING

These are the salient points from 16 August meeting:

- Planning is in progress for the induction of our new Rector on 1 November 2016.
Lay minister documentation has mostly been deferred until after the new Rector takes up duty, as has strategic planning for the coming year; and no confirmations are planned for 2016.
A full set of Safe Ministry Resources for Ministry Units is now held in the Office, for reference by HC teams.
The Workplace Health and Safety audit for the Parish has been completed.
Coordination of asset registers is under way and should be completed within another month.
Drivers' logs are being implemented for transportation of vulnerable parishioners.
An excellent donation response ($2109.35) was achieved for expansion of Safe Shelter operations in Ainslie.
The financial status of the Parish remains strong and some funds will be deployed temporarily to reduce loan interest.
A PC sub group will develop a list of potential recipients of the Wider Work donations by the Parish, for approval by PC at its September meeting.
The team responsible for the Parish Dinner was congratulated on an excellent evening and financial result (just over $6000).
The plant sale/mini-fete is in preparation, and convenors are being sought for mini-fete stalls.
Extension of the Youth Workers' contracts was approved for three months, from early September until December; the youth group will be participating in the 40-hour 'famine' this weekend and working with Revd Katherine on the family service on 28 August.
The Parish Roll will be complemented by a document which has information about the Parish and covers safe ministry.
A men's get together is being organised by Nic Platt for 26 August, 7.30pm in the Rainbow Centre.
The Holistic Care Nursing Program has received government funding and a Coordinator is being sought; a defibrillator will be funded for the Worship Centre.
The Covenant Care Day Hospice has 18 clients, some new high-backed chairs and a donation from National Seniors of three personal CD players. A strategic planning session will be held for Covenant Care on 19 September.
A letter will be sent to Susanna and Nikolai, thanking them for celebrating our services on 31 July.
