In today's readings the writers continue to explain the importance and place of love for each believer and within the community of faith. Love is no mere ideal we aspire to. Rather, we are commanded to love: to love God, to love others. Love is not a matter of our choice. The writers also bring the work of the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of truth, into this complex exploration of the centrality of love.

It is the Acts reading that reveals the revolutionary force of love. The impact and importance of love shattered attempts to constrain or to restrict it long before the more theological exploration of love unfolded. We may not establish boundaries around the community of faith, around whom we are to love: that choice is God's. On this, the readings are unequivocal.

The Acts' reading picks up immediately after Peter has been witnessing to the people about Jesus and reminding them that Jesus is Lord of all (Acts 10:36b). Suddenly the Holy Spirit came upon all those who heard Peter's message (Acts 10:44). Watch the contrasting emphasis in the next verse. This outpouring of the Spirit even on the Gentiles present astounded Peter's circumcised followers (believers). Clearly an exclusive mindset was operating amongst those early believers: they saw this call to follow and believe as limited to the circumcised. (Jewish male believers bore on their bodies the mark of circumcision as a manifestation of Jewish identity, of belonging to God and each other.)

They were simply following traditional Jewish custom in excluding Gentiles from their midst. With the outpouring of the Spirit upon Gentiles too, the Spirit revealed the truth that these old boundaries could no longer be maintained. Christ indeed was Lord of all: Gentiles were to be included in the community of believers. They too were to be loved and were commanded to love. But they did not receive circumcision to mark their belonging. Peter, capitulating before the force of the Spirit's revealing truth, said "Can anyone keep these people from being baptised with water." This along with receiving the Holy Spirit was now the mark of belonging. In this radical revolutionary act Peter had pushed the boundaries of love and belonging outwards to embrace these once outsiders. God had chosen them; how could Peter have acted otherwise! Imagine their astonished joy! But little wonder that Peter was called to account for his radical actions before his fellow apostles and believers in Jerusalem. By drawing them all into this inclusive vision of love and belonging, Peter's revolutionary loving action in accepting Gentiles in their newly emerging community of faith became mainstream.

*"Love one another and you will be happy"
It is as simple and difficult as that.
There is no other way. Amen (Michael Leunig)*

SINGLE FATHER FACING THE TOUGHEST OF TIMES

AW left a voice message on St John's Care answering machine late in the evening asking for someone to call him back urgently. The following morning, I returned the call and AW answered. I could hear children in the background which sounded like a normal household getting ready for school. Except it was not a normal morning. AW told me that his partner, the mother of their four children (two boys and two girls), had packed up and left two weeks prior. He did not know her whereabouts and could not go to work because two of the four children were under the age of five. They used to stay at home with their mum when he was working as a bricklayer and tiler.

Prior to this event, he wasn't receiving any Centrelink assistance. As a matter of fact, he had never received any assistance during his 25 year tradesman career. He was stressed and very uncomfortable asking for help.

AW told me that he was devastated and in a state of despair as he suspected that his partner had been using substances. After her departure, he and the children were left with an electricity bill close to $5000! He explained that he would earn the money and his partner would pay the bills. Two weeks prior to his partner leaving, he gave her enough money to cover half the electricity bill. Unfortunately, the bill was left unpaid.

He cried on the phone. He said, "I just don't know what to do. I don't even know if there is any help". I invited him to come to SJC and he and the children arrived two hours after our conversation (it was school holiday). We assisted him with enough food to last two weeks for six people and gave him vouchers to buy some extra winter clothes for the kids. I made a few phone calls to other agencies including Care Financial to make an appointment for AW so that financial counsellors could look into advocating for him regarding imminent bills he had.

I also referred AW to Parent Line, a single fathers' group and then we called a Centrelink Community Worker on his behalf. The biggest problem AW was facing was that he couldn't work anymore due to his parenting responsibilities. The family left with plenty of food, some toys and clothes for the kids. They all had smiles on their faces. The children loved that a volunteer had packed a bag full of goodies just for them - this was a special prize for being patient while their dad was in a session room with me working out how to improve their situation.

The good news for this family is that they are now receiving Centrelink assistance, and are supported by SJC as well as numerous other agencies.

Unfortunately, it is going to be a tough road for AW while he finds the right balance between parenting and looking for ways to earn enough money to support himself and his four children. He said that although he is facing the toughest times in his life, he is grateful that he found St John's Care. It is tough to be a single father, but he wants to be the best father he can be!

As always, thank you to St John's Care donors for their continuous support!

Kind regards,

Nailia, SJC Case Manager

FUEL FOR THE DAY

For your steadfast love is before my eyes. Psalm 26:3

The flow of the autumn mist was like a whisper on the breeze as it lifted to give way to light and clear and bright of the new day and never more glorious were the colours of autumn. It is such a special time when we pause and take in the sights around us, not only take them in for their beauty but for the footprint of God that has created for our pleasure.

As little sanctuaries of God we need this fuel for the day – these times when the Lord's presence is marvelously before us. Stop, pause, see and give thanks.

Grace and peace from the Lord Jesus Christ

Anne, servant of the Lord

HOME GROUPS

small groups are a great way for us to get to know others and to grow in faith by having fun together.

A variety of groups will start in May Including our GROW GROUPs for better discipleship.

Let the office know if you would like to lead or participate

DIVE DEEPER

Why do worship?
16 May, 11.30-12.30pm

Worship is weird. We step in.
We take a journey.
We leave a different person.

If you've ever wondered why we do what we do at worship, how you can help and what will make it better, why not come to our monthly conversations about worship following the 10am service?

Time to Celebrate

Our parish birthday is fast approaching. Planning is underway, but we need some help.

If you enjoy a good party and have a gift for organisation and could assist, please speak with Wayne or one of the Wardens.
